

Module 2

1. Steve Anders uses contrast brilliantly in his website, off-setting his gray background with his gray words by differing the hue. He also uses color to contrast against the more basic gray backgrounds.

2. Steve uses proximity throughout his website very well, despite is small sampling of different pages it bunches similar information together without disrupting the flow of his unique layout. There are tabs to click which can jump you straight to what you're looking for or you can continuously scroll down throughout the one page layout.

3. The only thing that I could really say that in my opinion could use improvement would be the repetition, the font size and style does seem to change throughout the small webpage. This is obviously an easy fix and would truly cap the portfolio of as spotless.

4. I guess it would be considered the alignment, but what I mean is the way that there are tabs that you can click on to jump you right to what you're looking for, or you can seamlessly scroll through the webpage without being interrupted by the end of a page. I think that is a neat way of keeping someone on the webpage and having them read through everything, even if they didn't plan on doing so.
