Module 8 Rationale

At the time that I viewed my Github there was just one folder for modules along with things like the index. I will be adding modules, rationales, wireframes and other things of that nature in the future. All of these will help me when creating my portfolio. I simply created a Module folder and a Rationale folder to help with some of the clutter. I am not overly obsessed with organization but I do enjoy a certain level of control when it comes to more than a handful of files which this class has impressed upon me. Therefore, any major things we work on like modules and rationales will get their own folders, however the organization in the folder will be virtually zero.